Timber information

With changes in temperature and humidity timber can exhibit a variety of natural features.

These are known as shakes and appear as the timber dries out and loses its moisture content. As timber is a natural product this is to be expected and does not affect the strength or durability of the product.

From time to time our products may present a colouration on the surface. This is from the pressure treatment process and will fade over time. Again this does not affect the durability of the product.

"PT" next to our timber products signifies that it has been pressure treated. We pressure treat these items to Use Class 4.
